DEATH-LADEN.

Two More Plague-Stricken Ships
in New York Harbor.

Five Deaths on the Normannia and Four on the Rugia.

ANOTHER FATAL CASE REPORTED ON THE STEAMER MORAVIA.

Nine Cases of Cholera Now Under Treatment on the Incoming Vessels—All Arrivals Quarantined and Subjected to Rigid Inspection—The Lower Harbor Dotted With Yellow Flags—Latest Reports from Foreign Plague Spots.

QUARANTINE, S. L., Sept. 8.—Sunrise at the Narrows was chilly, with a slow rising fog. Conditions as to numbers of the fleet in the quarantine grounds had changed greatly from last night by the addition of three anxiously looked for arrivals from Hamburg, viz., the Rugia, Stubbenuk and the express steamer Normannia. As a natural result the air was filled with reports of cholera cases on one or all of the vessels, but all stories are speculative, as none of the ships have been inspected. Determined that none of the suspected ships should get to close range, Dr. Jenkins went afloat at midnight, and as a result the three ships named were ordered to the lower bay to await his further pleasure. This gave rise to the reports of sickness, but it is a fact that no one boarded either of the trio except the health officer or his deputy, Dr. Tallmadge, and they have done nothing as in the case of inspecting the work to be done on the Anchors Line, City of Rome and the Cunarder Umbria, the latter having anchored in quarantine at 9:15 this morning. The vessels below being from infected ports will be handled after this work is finished. In addition to the City of Rome and the I'mbra, the freight ships Mohican and Federation are the only vessels at the upper station and they await the ordinary inspection and will go up to day.

Health Officer Jenkins and Deputy Tallmadge left the quarantine dock at midnight and did not return until early this morning. They had been patrolling the lower bay in search of intruders. The passengers of the City of Rome are all well. The Hamburg steamer Stubbenuk with 200 steerage passengers on board arrived at quarantine and was immediately ordered back to the lower bay. No report was given out as to the health of those on board.

The report that there had been several deaths from cholera on board the Rugia was received about 10 o'clock. That report said there had been twenty-three deaths during the trip and that there were ten cases on board. The Rugia, American Packet Co., said that there had been some deaths from cholera on both the Normannia and the Rugia, although the number in the case of the latter had been greatly exaggerated in the report first received.

The report that there were twenty-three deaths on the Rugia was obtained in this way: A health officer boarded the Chattoocoochee this morning and, it is said, told one of the passengers that there had been twenty-three deaths from cholera during the "Asia's voyage, and that there were still ten cases on board.

It was 11:30 o'clock at quarantine when Dr. Jenkins admitted reporters. He said: "Gentlemen, according to my reports there were nine cases of cholera on the Rugia. There were five convalescents and four deaths. On the Normannia there were five deaths and there are now four convalescents. On the Asia there is one additional case. It is an 8-year old boy."

THE DEATH LIST.

On the Normannia—Carl Haggart, 37 years old, second cabin passenger, died Aug. 30; Jacob Hymann, 45 years old, first cabin, died Aug. 31; Ottlie Strom, 11 months, died Aug. 30; Willie Strom, Sept. 1; Adolf Scholz, 20 years; Cases—Heinrich Frake, Heiser, 30 years; Rudolf Harnish, 11 months; Selma Strom, 5 years; and Marie Bernheisel, 61 years, are all ill on board the German steamship companies will carry emigrants."

DETROIT ALERT.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—At a special meeting of the Municipal Council last night, called for the purpose of considering the cholera question, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Board of Health and health officer be hereafter empowered and requested to adopt such measures and plans as may be necessary to prevent the introduction and spread of cholera in this city; and that such plans and regulations as they may adopt be hereby submitted to the Board of Health.

President Harrison's proclamation will not do much toward keeping the disease from reaching this city, as it cannot be applied to vessels coming here. It is said that if its provisions are so strictly enforced as to prohibit all steamship passengers from landing, the result will doubtless be the practical suspension of the immigrant traffic through Detroit, as all the Canadian railroads will refuse to accept passengers for this point.

GOVERNMENT ACTION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A proclamation to the country warning boards of health and the people generally to be on their guard against cholera was issued in the name of the President. Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Spaulding and Surgeon-General Wyman were in consultation over the terms of the proclamation after the expiration of the cholera season. The result was that the proclamation will be issued on Friday, Aug. 24, to the United States District Grand Jury, and will be ready to submit to the President and it will be issued over his signature.

RAGS BARRED OUT.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 8.—Dr. Prendergast, health officer of this city, has issued quarantine orders to railroads and rag dealers against rags destined here from any foreign port. It absolutely forbids bringing them into this city.

HARRISON'S PROCLAMATION.

IT HAS IMMEDIATE EFFECT ON THE TIDE OF IMMIGRATION.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—President Harrison's circular recommending a twenty-days' quarantine against all emigrant vessels had immediate effect on the official action towards emigrants here. Groups of Italians in transit here last night for the United States were stopped at the Gare Saint Lazare, where they expected to take trains to convey them to the French steamer, and were informed that the general Transatlantic Line would not allow them to land in France. An official from the Minister of the Interior conducted them to the Gare de Lyon, where they were placed on a train and sent back to Italy at the expense of the French Government.

ON THE MORAVIA.

There was an air of mystery at Clifton, Staten Island, last night. A rumor was current that another case of cholera had been discovered on board of the Moravia or one of the other delayed vessels. Health Officer Jenkins took steps to ascertain the truth. It was plain that Dr. Jenkins had met the stranger by appointment. The tug sped down past the quarantine station and headed toward the hospital islands.

It was reported early this morning that Dr. Sanborn, who had been stationed on the Moravia since her arrival, left that vessel in a tug at midnight. It may be that Dr. Jenkins has gone to have a consultation with him. In some way the belief became general at the quarantine station that the condition of affairs had suddenly become worse on the Moravia and that Dr. Jenkins considered immediate action necessary. It was stated from unofficial sources that two new cases of cholera had been developed.

A LOOPOLE OPEN.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Sept. 8.—Gov. Burke has received the following telegram from Collector Nelson, at Pemba: "Have just wired the honorable Secretary of the Treasury as follows: 'Immigrants direct from European countries, presumably Germany, are daily arriving at Neche, in this district, Ville, Montreal, Canada, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, without certificates of inspection.'

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES.

QUARANTINE REGULATIONS CARRIED OUT AT ALL POINTS.

QUEBEC, Sept. 8.—The commission of the international conference of boards of health, consisting of Dr. Watson of New Hampshire, President; Dr. Bryce, of Toronto, Secretary; Dr. J. N. McCormick of Covington, Ky., and Dr. H. B. Baker, of Michigan, returned here late last night from the inspection of the Canadian quarantine station at Grosses Iles. They declare that the equipments of the station as at present existing are wholly inadequate to protect the territory depending on it from the importation of cholera or other contagious diseases. They claim that the chief deficiencies of the station are: No wharf adequate for the safe and speedy landing of passengers and their effects while vessel may be disinfected; no suitable disinfecting apparatus for either baggage, mail or personal effects; no accommodation for the detention of suspects; no adequate water supply either for washing, bathing, drinking or other necessary purposes.

The Rugia was too crowded for comfortable navigation and with further arrivals to-day more work is promised to devolve on the quarantine officers than they can very well handle. Early this morning the Hamburg ships arrived. At 5:30 the Rugia was ordered to the lower quarantine, presumably owing to the lack of anchorage room in the channel. At 6:20 she had been followed by the Stubbenuk and the Normannia, Dr. Jenkins personally went aboard the Normannia and directed her removal.

When the doctor returned to the Normannia he brought with him about 100 telegrams and cables. It was suspected from several things which had happened that there was cholera aboard one of the vessels in the lower bay, but neither Dr. Jenkins nor his deputies would make one word of explanation. It is evident that quarantine will be crowded unless several lucky ships are soon released. This morning the Lahn at half speed got underway and started for the city. At that hour the wildest kind of speculation was afoot concerning the late arrivals.

The Rugia left Hamburg on the 23d and her first death occurred on the 28th, or five days after sailing. HERE IS HARMONY.

Maj. Warner Makes a Pleasant Call at State Democratic Headquarters.

THE REPUBLICAN LEADER AND MAJ. SALMON EXCHANGE COURTESIES.

The Republican State Committee at a Loss to Know What Disposition to Make of Ex-Boss Filley—Conference To-Day at the State Committee Rooms—General Political News.

When Maj. Harvey W. Salmon, Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, was informed this morning that Maj. William Warner, the Republican candidate for Governor, was in the city, he sent word up to the Lindell that it would give him pleasure to meet the leader of the "New Missouri idea." Maj. Salmon and Maj. Warner are old friends, though they differ widely in politics. In the late war Maj. Warner was a gallant soldier in the Union army, and Maj. Salmon was equally gallant in the army that went to pieces at Appomattox. When Maj. Warner received the invitation from the Chairman of the Executive Committee he said: "This is the right idea of politics. We are all Missourians, and though Democrats or Republicans we can meet and shake hands whether or not we agree politically."

Maj. Warner sent word that it would give him pleasure to call on Maj. Salmon and shortly before noon Maj. Warner, accompanied by Collector Henry Ziegelheim of the State Republican Committee, called at the Laclede Hotel and received a pleasant reception from Chairman Salmon. Maj. Warner was feeling in good health and spirits and had nothing but pleasant words for everybody. Maj. Salmon was equally agreeable. They talked about army matters and Collector Ziegelheim told of his experiences with Gen. Grant, with whom he spent his early days. Story after story was told without a shadow of partisan consideration until a Mississian gentleman rejoicing in the name of Ryan entered the committee room.

HE WAS A DEMOCRAT.

He inquired for Chairman Salmon and said: "We want a hundred copies of Col. Stone's speech."

"Very sorry," said Maj. Salmon, "but we have just sold them. We have ordered a new addition and in a day or two you can have a thousand if you want them."

The Irish-American visitor paused for awhile and said he thought Stone's speech was worth distributing everywhere in Missouri. In the meanwhile Maj. Warner was smiling and looking at the caller. "By the way, Harvey," he said to Maj. Salmon, "why not give this gentleman a few copies of the speech that Mr. Warner delivered up in Sedalia last Friday? I think they deserved to be kept out of the hands of the railroads."

Nobody laughed more heartily than Maj. Warner at this declaration. When the visitor was invited to sit down Maj. Warner's countenance brightened. "I did not intend to offend you or anybody else, but honestly I think the Democrats are the best people after all to govern Missouri."

Maj. Salmon was particularly anxious with Maj. Warner to be allowed to call on him as soon as convenient. "After all," said Maj. Salmon when Maj. Warner was leaving, "we are not arguing the merits of the canvas. Let it be fair, many fight now. The Democrats are not afraid to meet it."

"All," said Maj. Warner, "the Republicans are ready for the same sort of a scrimmage." Then the leader of the Republicans and the Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee shook hands and parted.

WANTS TO BE PLACATED.

What to do with "de Ole Man" is getting to be a serious question with the Republican leaders. Filley has returned and as none of the new bosses of the Republican machine seem disposed to placate him, the understanding is that he will continue to plead a sore ear and "elimination" to justify his inactivity in the present State campaign. When the State Convention retired him from the chairmanship of the State Committee Filley became indignant, but when the Missouri delegation at Milwaukee eliminated him from the National Committee he waxed furious and has been out of humor ever since. His long vacation in New York has not apparently soothed his indignation. There has been no effort made by Col. Kerec to enlist him in the campaign, and the State Committee has pursued about the same policy. In the meantime the City Central Committee which is still loyal to the ex-boos, has settled down in a rut of masterly inactivity. The State Committee has apparently done nothing to get the City Committee to work, and the City Central Committee say there will be no work when they get the funds. If the State Committee has any funds, it seems disposed to hold on to them rather than give the city machine a whack at the treasury. This attitude has strengthened the opinion that the State organization does not expect much assistance from Filley's city machine. Since his return Mr. Filley has said some severe things about Committeeeman Kerec and the management of the State canvass. Those who are familiar with the situation say that Filley will not be asked to take any hand in the campaign, but if he volunteers his services they will be accepted. In the meantime Mr. Filley is taking things easy and nursing his sore ear and his political grievances. Some of the old man's opponents are disposed to doubt that the situation is in the ear, holding the opinion that the trouble is confined to his head.

Piedmont Convention.

The Congressional Convention that meets at Piedmont Tuesday to nominate a Congressman from the Tenth District bids fair to terminate in just such an other wrangle as was experienced in the Ninth District, Washington, Webster, Wright, Dent, Texas, Carter, Perry, Reynolds, Wayne, Iron, Jefferson, St. Louis, Madison, Marion, Greene, and Byrnes. Washington, W. F. Ryan of Webster, J. E. Oregan of Dent, W. R. Edgar of Iron, F. G. Carter of St. Francois and Edwards, and others of the candidates before the convention. The district is entitled to 76 votes and 40 are necessary to a choice. Byrnes has instructed for him to vote for Edwards, while Oregan 5 and Hobb claims 10 of the 20 unstructured votes. It was generally understood that Mr. Byrnes had informed Mr. Carter last June that he would not be a candidate for re-election, which brought out a number of candidates, among them Mr. Edwards, who agreed with him to be aware that Mr. Byrnes had decided to make the race. The supporters of the candidates that will go into the convention Tuesday decide the nomination. If they do not choose them to stay at Piedmont all winter, which makes the nomination of Mr. Byrnes very uncertain, and it is not likely that the uninstructed delegates will give Mr. Byrnes their support.

Chairman Taubeneck and Secretary J. H. Turner of the National Executive Committee of the People's party, have come to the conclusion that the less they say for publication the better it will be for the populists. WILLIAMS ACCEPTS.

The Congressional Convention that meets at Piedmont Tuesday to nominate a Congressman from the Tenth District bids fair to terminate in just such an other wrangle as was experienced in the Ninth District, Washington, Webster, Wright, Dent, Texas, Carter, Perry, Reynolds, Wayne, Iron, Jefferson, St. Louis, Madison, Marion, Greene, and Byrnes. Washington, W. F. Ryan of Webster, J. E. Oregan of Dent, W. R. Edgar of Iron, F. G. Carter of St. Francois and Edwards, and others of the candidates before the convention. The district is entitled to 76 votes and 40 are necessary to a choice. Byrnes has instructed for him to vote for Edwards, while Oregan 5 and Hobb claims 10 of the 20 unstructured votes. It was generally understood that Mr. Byrnes had informed Mr. Carter last June that he would not be a candidate for re-election, which brought out a number of candidates, among them Mr. Edwards, who agreed with him to be aware that Mr. Byrnes had decided to make the race. The supporters of the candidates that will go into the convention Tuesday decide the nomination. If they do not choose them to stay at Piedmont all winter, which makes the nomination of Mr. Byrnes very uncertain, and it is not likely that the uninstructed delegates will give Mr. Byrnes their support.

AMUSEMENTS TO-NIGHT.

GRAND-OPERA-HOUSE—G. W. Leederer's Stock Co., Haylin's "777." Powe's—"The Gossom."

Weather forecast for thirty-six hours, beginning at 8 a.m. to-day, for St. Louis: Fair; warmer. Rain has fallen in Montana, Nebraska, South Dakota and West Minnesota, and the rain area is moving eastward. The temperature has risen slightly in the central valleys, and has fallen in the extreme Northwest. The temperatures reported from Western Oregon and Washington are near the frost limit, but no moderate day is anticipated in districts east of the Rocky mountains.

THE School Board is a pathological curiosity. It lives and moves and sins without a backbone.

EVERY dollar contributed to the Northwest campaign fund will help to win a telling vote for Democracy.

THE Warner Democrat must be a product of Maj. Warner's "New Missouri." He does not exist in old Missouri.

THE voters of the Northwest cannot be bought, but they can be taught to vote right, and that is the Democratic opportunity.

GOV. FRANCIS knows how to conduct a campaign, as his substantial contribution to the WORLD campaign fund amply shows.

STEVE ELKINS has not said a word in favor of Harrison, but retains his cabinet position. Perhaps the President keeps him to prevent his going into opposition.

MR. GLADSTONE was attacked by a mad cow the other day and came near losing his life. It is pleasing to know that even great men are exposed to vulgar dangers just like common folks.

HARRISON is said to be managing his own campaign in Indiana. We are not informed as to the identity of his Wicked Partner who is to handle the funds and man the blocks of five.

THE help of contemporaries in the work of making St. Louis clean, though weak and halting, is welcomed by the Post-Dispatch. There is opportunity for all to join in the anti-filth crusade.

THE city cleaning efforts of the Post-Dispatch are receiving hearty support from all directions. The crusade against dirt will have made it impossible for cholera to harm the city should it reach us on its westward march.

A REPUBLICAN organ declares that the report of the Senate Committee of which Senator Aldrich was chairman showing that in a large majority of protected industries wages had decreased, while in a large majority of unprotected industries wages had increased. Against it also is the record of reductions in wages and the labor troubles and strikes growing out of them.

But granting all that Peck claims that in some protected industries wages have increased and a few thousand men make a few dollars more a year, does that justify the protective tariff? Is it right that millions of people should be heavily taxed because a few manufacturers give a part of the taxation swag, out of which they make fortunes, to their workingmen? Does a division of the swag justify robbery?

THE absurdity of the spoils system is nowhere so clearly shown as in the fights over fourth-class postmasterships, which engender neighborhood feuds and tempt tempests in nearly every rural community in the country. If these were all, however, it would not be worth while to dignify the subject by a comment, but it assumes national importance when postmaster-generals and their chief aids are obliged to spend their time over ignoble squabbles between rival village storekeepers. A postmaster-general is employed to extend and improve the means of communication between the people and his assistants are expected to assist him in the work. The best service cannot be expected of them until they devote all their time to their legitimate duties, but this will not be until the fourth class postmaster's politics cease to influence the appointing power. Officials of the department have expressed themselves very vigorously on the subject from time to time, but during a hot campaign are apt will be deprived of credit by the Grocers' Association of that place, and that they are confident of starving the men into submission. Of course we know they can't do this, because the workingmen of Massachusetts, being well protected, have big bank accounts and do not really have work at all; they are "so prosperous, you know."

MODERN SAVAGERY.

How much barbarism lingers in the breasts of the most enlightened people on the globe is painfully manifest at present, when a series of pugilistic contests overwhelm in public interest the struggle for supremacy in the nation and all the great concerns of science, literature and commerce.

The heroes of the American people just now are not political leaders, intellectual giants or brilliant scientists, but six brawny brutes who are engaged in a hammering contest next week. Questions of great pith and moment relating to the affairs of mankind are forgotten in the flood of questions as to Sullivan's condition, Corbett's hitting power and whether the latter's youth and skill will be a match for the former's strength. A page of descriptions, predictions, opinions, weighing of chances and current talk about the sluggers and their coming fight is read with avidity where a column on a more important topic would be too much. Thousands of men will expend large sums of money to see these men hammer each other and millions will await the news of the result with breathless interest.

In so far as these slugging matches are exhibitions of strength, endurance, determination and other high qualities of manhood the interest in them may be reconciled with high civilization, but in so far as they are inseparably connected with brutality, the infliction of cruel pain and the shedding of blood, it bespeaks a remnant of savagery in the breasts of civilized men. In view of the modern worship of the "slugger," those who live in the sweetness and light of Christian civilization must admit humiliating fellowship with those who lived in the darkness of barbarism and had an admiration for gladiators.

JUSTIFYING ROBBERY.

The protection organs have struck a sweet morsel in the report of Labor Commissioner Peck of New York, in which it is set forth that wages in a number of industries in that State have increased since the adoption of the McKinley law.

This is the Peck who made himself so obnoxious during the Chicago Convention by denouncing Mr. Cleveland and giving vent to loud-mouthed prophecies that he could not be elected. He is one of those political freaks who call themselves protection Democrats and his animus towards Cleveland has been so thoroughly exposed from this issue than the Old Whigs could get away from the issue of slavery.

The force bill is a potent issue at the South, and with the other excesses and rascality in the Republican record will be useful everywhere.

It is the Democratic platform and ticket against the Republican record and candidates. And no point must be missed.

to forget themselves, as Mr. Wanamaker seems to have done when he organized a political machine out of his humblest appointees.

The campaign in the Northwest will be opened about the 15th with a number of the most eloquent and convincing speakers in the field. It will be a new experience for the people of the great farming States to listen to appeals to reason and common sense rather than clap-trap and ancient history. But they are just the people whom it is best worth while to cultivate. Thirty years ago they voted almost unanimously with the Republicans and voted intelligently. They could give a good reason for it. They could do so until from habit and being shut out from the clearer currents of thought they became automata in the service of an organization which had totally changed its purpose and character since its first victory in 1860. All that is needed now is to show them a few indisputable facts. They are not wedded to a mere name, and Republicanism is not a fetish with them. A strong persistent canvass will turn their faces toward the light. The Northwest belongs to the Democracy, because it is an intelligent, hard-headed section, hating wrong and loving liberty. But it cannot be won unless it is shown that the Democratic party is the party of decency, honesty and intelligence.

The hint from Washington that the Congress is going to Venezuela with an important mission to perform in the way of assuring the Monroe doctrine and vindicating American honor is not surprising. The campaign in the United States and the revolution in Venezuela offer irresistible temptation for another outbreak of Harrisonian "patriotism."

ALL THE ISSUES.

From the New York World.

There is here and there a Democratic editor at the South who has need to enlarge his horizon and improve his political perspective.

When he talks about putting the tariff issue aside and confining the Democratic campaign to fighting the force bill he talks as foolishly as do those who would put all other issues aside and fight solely upon the tariff.

The school children need to learn all the living and distinctive issues upon which it is separated from the Republican party.
